PLEURO-PNEUMONIA.

STEPS TAKEN TO PROMPTLY STAMP
OUT THE CONTAGION.

Commissioner Colman's Powers in the Premises—The Deplorable Condition of Stock and the Terror of Spreading—Particulars.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., April 25.—The following telegram was received by Gov. Marmaduke from Col. Norman J. Colman, commissioner of agriculture:
"Wassenaar, April 25.—Hon. John S. Marmaduke, governor of Missouri: In accordance with the act of congress approved May 30, 1884, establishing a bureau of animal industry, I herewith transmit to you rules and regulations deemed necessary for the speedy and effectual suppression and extirpation of pleuro-pneumonia in the state of Missouri, and I respectfully invite your co-operation as chief executive of the state of Missouri. In the plans and methods fixed by these rules, and in their execution and enforcement. Whenever the chief of the bureau of animal industry shall be satisfied and reported to the commissioner of agriculture that contagious pleuro-pneumonia or other dangerous, infectious or communicable disease exists in any state or territory, and is liable to spread from such state or territory into another state or territory, the commissioner of agriculture will designate one or more officers or employees of said bureau, whose duty it shall be to proceed immediately to the locality where such infectious or communicable disease is reported to exist, and either establish suitable quarantine regulations to prevent the spread of said disease, or assess the value of any animal or animals which it may be found necessary to destroy in order to extirpate said disease, or to employ both measures, if necessary, for the extinction of same."

"It shall be the duty of such officers or employees detailed for the purpose aforesaid to report to the commissioner of agriculture the number of cattle they have found necessary to destroy, with the names of their owners and the assessed value of said cattle, and said officers or employees shall deliver to said owner or owners certificates of the number of cattle so killed and the assessed value thereof. Upon receiving said report the commissioner of agriculture shall examine the same, and if he approves of the proceedings of said officers and employees, and the assessment made by them, he may order the payment of the amounts so assessed to the respective owners of the cattle destroyed; and if he shall disapprove of the amounts so assessed, he may order the payment to said owners of such sum as he may deem a right and reasonable compensation for said cattle."

"It shall also be the duty of said officers or employees to cause the carcasses of animals found necessary to be destroyed to be buried, buried or otherwise disposed of, and the cost of such disposition of said carcasses shall also be reported by them to the commissioner of agriculture, and the amount, if approved, will be paid out of the fund appropriated for such purposes. If, in the opinion of said officers or employees so detailed, the spread of such infectious or communicable disease can be prevented by the quarantining of the animals in the locality where such disease is reported to exist, then a safe and secure quarantine shall be effected, the cost of same to be also reported to the commissioner of agriculture, and if approved by him the same will be paid out of the fund heretofore named."

"The rules and regulations governing the details of slaughter and quarantine will be forwarded as soon as prepared. Please advise me by telegram of the necessity of your acceptance of the plan and method herewith proposed."

(Signed)
"NORMAN J. COLMAN,
"Commissioner of Agriculture."

To the above telegram the governor sent the following reply:

"Hon. Norman J. Colman, commissioner of agriculture, Washington, D. C.: As governor of Missouri, I accept your plans and methods proposed in your telegram, and will earnestly co-operate with you in the execution of them. I urge you to take the most prompt steps to extirpate this disease now prevailing, so as to prevent its spreading, calm our people and restore the true value of our cattle by removing the present restrictions on our commerce."
(Signed)
"JOHN S. MARMADUKE."

A Boat-Load of Infected Cattle.
HERMANN, Mo., April 25.—The steamer Dora, which had on board a car-load of cattle from Callaway county, which the owner intended to ship to St. Louis from this place, was met by officers and citizens just west of this city. The captain was informed that he would not be allowed to land the cattle at this port. The agent of the Missouri Pacific at this place, W. F. Hicomm, was also on hand, and informed the owner of the cattle that he had orders not to receive the lot. The gentlemen on board, after learning the situation, thought it best to return the cattle to the point from where they were shipped in Callaway county. The Dora also had on board a car-load of hogs, which were also returned to Callaway county. The steamer is now on its way up the river with the cattle, and the excitement which has been prevailing here over the matter has somewhat subsided.

The Western Missouri Association.
KANSAAS CITY, Mo., April 25.—A meeting of western Missouri cattle cattle growers will be held at Riverview Park to raise money to aid in stamping out the cattle disease in Missouri. There is some dissatisfaction with the resolution passed by the representatives of the cattle associations. The treasurer of the Cherokee strip association says that other associations append the name of Cherokee company without authority, and certainly without sanction.

WILMINGTON, Del., April 25.—Constable Hutchins went to Bowser's Beach and arrested ten Jersey fishermen for violating the new fishery law. Other Jersey fishermen escaped by hastily turning their boats toward the Jersey shore. These arrests were made in waters over which Delaware's jurisdiction is undisputed.

McClough's Wanderings.
St. Louis, April 25.—John McClough, the great tragedian, has arrived at the Southern hotel, coming unexpectedly and unannounced. His mental condition seems to be very weak, and he fancies that he is to appear in his favorite role soon and have complete possession of his mind.
